What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. Archer, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CARLOS MARTIN, D. D., New York City.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, four Stomach, Diarrhea, Eructation, Kills Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PARSONS, M. D., 124th Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

SAM JONES' LETTER.

He Has Something to Say of Clarksville and His Meeting.

The Week Spent Here He Declares, All in All, to be One of the Most Delightful of His History.

Rev. Sam P. Jones, under date of November 18, writes from Cartersville, Ga., to the Atlanta Journal as follows:

"We closed the series of meetings at Clarksville, Tenn., on the night of the 14th inst., and surely it was a remarkable meeting.

"We began two days before the national election and ran right along through the excitement of the election, and the crowds were immense and the interest in the meeting increased daily. Nowhere this year have I seen a more gracious or wonderful sight.

"Clarksville is the gem city of Tennessee, situated on the banks of the Cumberland river. I am sure that a little city of ten thousand can show no more elegant people or more hospitality or refinement. The homes of the people, the business interests, etc., can not be excelled. It is the second tobacco market in America. Louisville only leads Clarksville.

"This is the only series of meetings I ever conducted through a presidential election.

"The politics of Tennessee, as we know, is a mixtry, as the old woman calls it, and then after the day of the election the news of Cleveland's election was so glorious the people could hardly contain themselves.

"Indeed it was glorious and I felt like bawling myself. But in spite of this excitement the meeting grew in interest and crowds gathered and it culminated in one of the most successful in my experience.

"The proprietor of the Arlington Hotel closed his bar and went out of business, and his saloon was to Clarksville just what the Kimball House saloon is to Atlanta, and there was a general rejoicing in Clarksville when the Arlington bar went out of existence.

"We closed the meeting Monday night with the great warehouse packed and there were perhaps two or three hundred who gave their hands the last night of the meeting, pledging thereby to join some one of the churches of the city. All in all it was one of the most delightful weeks in my history.

"We leave to-night for Galveston, Texas, for an eight days' meeting. I shall get home in time for the meeting of the North Georgia Conference, Providence permitting.

"I see Atlanta was on a big drunk last Wednesday, so says the Chattanooga Times, celebrating the election of Grover Cleveland.

"My ideas of Mr. Cleveland are such that I think that he does not consider it much of an honor for hundreds and thousands of men to get on a drunk in honor of him. It is no credit to the devil himself to be honored by a demonstration of such a character. No one rejoices more over Cleveland's election than I do. But I won't drink whisky and make a fool of myself in honor of anything, and there is no honor in any one in my dishonor.

"This great government in all interest is now turned over to the Democrats, and if they be wise, sober and courageous, they have opportunity to do something worthy of the great party.

"So regulate and run this nation that they may not only stay in power, but inaugurate and perpetuate an era of prosperity that will gladden the hearts of the oppressed and make a happy and contented people.

"Much is expected of the Democratic party from the common people. Now, will the Democratic party have the courage of its convictions? If not they will be beaten out again four years hence.

"The tariff can have but slight revision until we can reduce the expenditures. That one hundred and fifty million for pensions annually is the most outrageous thing ever saddled on a free people.

"The appropriation for pensions should be cut down to fifty millions at one pop, and pay that amount to the truly worthy and disabled Union soldiers, and cut off the balance of them, who no more deserve a pension than I do.

"Some of them never heard a gun fired during the war, unless it was on a squirrel hunt. I am in favor of pensioning all disabled worthy ex-soldiers of the union army, and none others.

"Cut down the appropriation at that point and all others to the necessities of the case and let the tax-payers have a rest. Yours, 'SAM P. JONES.'

NOW REST EASY.

The Critical Period is Passed and the World Still Revolving.

There are a few people in Clarksville who are surprised at being alive this morning, and they have a grateful look on their countenances. Last night at 9:25 o'clock was the hour in which the comet was to have knocked mother earth into a shapeless mass, and as a consequence there was much comet talk in the city about that hour. Star-gazers and heaven-searchers were out with their opera glasses trying to look a hole through the murky clouds which enveloped the heavens, shutting off from view any pyrotechnical display that might have been going on beyond them. They gazed until after the appointed hour for the curtain to rise on the world's reeking drama, and then went to dream of comets burning up the earth. A reporter ran across one benighted citizen armed with a stack of Roman candles with which he proposed to light up the heavens. Another one wanted to sell his drug store, while a third was hunting an insurance agent to increase a policy on his stock. Squads were noticed around the hotels listening to some fellow who proved to be a scientific ignoramus telling just how it was that the collision was bound to take place. You could hear most anything, and a man with a vivid imagination could have seen the earth as she broke loose from her moorings and shot out into space, being chased by a blood-thirsty comet. The critical period is behind us now and business will seek its former level, and the timid ones will rejoice that they are still alive.

Illinois, Kentucky.

From Danville, Ill., Mrs. H. J. Nabors writes: I have been using your remedies for scrofula and am greatly benefited. My back was almost one solid sore. Two boxes of Dr. Hale's Household Ointment healed it entirely.

From Olive Hill, Ky., Mrs. M. J. Matney writes: May 13, 1892: "My daughter has been afflicted with erysipelas in her eyes from infancy. She is now past 12 years old and one 25c. box cured her." It costs no more to get the best. This is the best ointment in the world for general use. Get a box at Clarksville Drug Co., Edwin Thomas, Jr., Manager.

THE DEATH RECORD.

John H. Nye, of Cheatham County, Dies at Enon, Ala.

The American gives the following account of the death of a gentleman who was well known by many people of Montgomery county:

"A telegram was received in this city announcing the death at Enon, Ala., of Mr. John H. Nye, of this city. Mr. Nye was born and raised in Cheatham county, and was about thirty-seven years old. He studied law in Cheatham county, and about eight years ago removed to this city, marrying Miss Genella, daughter of Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald. Mr. Nye has practiced law here, but went to Alabama with the hope of restoring his failing health. He leaves his stricken wife and four little boys, besides a large number of friends, to mourn his loss."

Druggists Who Substitute.

Beware of the druggist or general dealer who, when asked for Lemon Chill Tonic, has something 'just as good' or 'just like it.' We say the person who habitually does this is not the one to trust with your prescriptions; he would be apt to substitute, if he hadn't what the prescription called for would put in something 'just as good.' There are many tonics on the market, but none claim to be better. Why then take the risk? The persons whose names are attached can tell you that Lemon Chill Tonic does everything we claim for it. Price 50 cents. For sale and guaranteed by Clarksville Drug Co., Edwin Thomas, Jr., Manager.

Church Reception.

On Thursday night, December 1, the ladies of the Methodist church propose to receive all the young people of the church from the age of fourteen and upward. The Sunday-school room will be suitably prepared for the occasion. Refreshments will be served and an appropriate program arranged. It promises to be a very pleasant event, and no doubt will be largely attended.

WRAPS FOR WINTER.

FUR COATS MORE EXPENSIVE AND ELABORATE THAN EVER.

Some Attractive Styles in Sealskin and Astrakhan—New Walking Dresses—Hats Keep Growing Larger, but Bonnets Go to the Other Extreme.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The fur coat of the season has never been so elaborate or expensive as it is now. Sealskin has nearly doubled in value, and as if this was not enough all sorts of fancy trills by which more work can be added and the cost augmented help to make papa or hubby baldheaded before his time.

WRAPS.

There are coats that come to the feet, and wraps odors, but the box coat of seal skin and the half long mantle are often seen. One old and not altogether pretty fashion is to have the collar arranged in such a way as to resemble wide ostrich tips and the edges scalloped. It is really becoming, however.

One of the prettiest wraps of this season is of black astrakhan laid in plaits, and with a high scalloped collar. Little pockets are placed in each side of the lining for holding the purse, etc. The only objection to these is that wearing fur against the hair is very injurious to the hair.

Another handsome cape is made of seal skin, with a box of mink or Russian sable, if one can afford it. There are fewer of the little voluminous breeding cases that reach only to the waist line, and the lady who cannot obtain one or the other of the new fur coats or capes will pass a very unhappy winter, so she will.

Some of the walking dresses of this season are very pretty, and evidently have been designed by some one who possesses a fair share of common sense, which tones down the ridiculous tendencies toward empire styles. I don't mind a real empire gown on the proper person, which is a pretty young woman, neither fat nor thin, but with a trim figure, and with much natural grace of movement, but the worst of it is that every one thinks herself exactly the kind that would be charming in an empire gown—a sort of superior Josephine or idealized Reclamer.

I could not express strongly enough the sort of picture they make. They move brusquely, and every angular point or movement is accentuated. Let us hope that the empire will not become arbitrary, but will allow us a little latitude of choice—at least enough for the pretty walking dress below, which is a type of modern taste.

The dress is of gray cheviot, with three narrow green jet studded braids. The sleeves and waist are of cheviot, with combination of green and gray brocade silk, with both windmill bow and lapels of green velvet bound with silver braid. The toque is of cheviot, with silver buckle and green coque plumes. When the weather is very cold, a vest of chamois is worn under the waist and keeps the wearer as warm as toast, but people who see the wearer now without a wrap would be apt to think that the young lady must be very cold or have a remarkable constitution.

Hats keep growing larger and more soul destroying than ever, but bonnets are very dainty and small, in many cases seeming to be little more than ornaments to the hair. The brims of the hats seem to have all run to the front in the melted state, though there are a very few in the Rubens and Rembrandt style, and some regular Puritan with high pointed crowns. Besides these the soft felt alpine is a favorite for a run about hat. Satin is a new material now in use for hats. Many are neatly shirred, and others are laid smooth.

Among the latest importations of silks I notice one, which is a thick cord bangle, every three cords being crinkled, and that gives the whole surface a very rich effect. It is in plain but exceedingly rich colors, and made up entirely by itself it produces a dress inapproachable except by velvet.

A velvet dress never goes out of style, but all fancy weaves of silk have their generation or two later, like the plaid silks now are. Satin, black and heavy, and white will both be worn for evening this season, and moire is already being made for a chosen few who will set the style. OLIVE HARPER.

THE NEXT HOUSE.

Capt. McKee Says the Democrats Will Have Eighty-two Majority.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Since the publication, Nov. 19, of the tables showing the composition of the next House of Representatives and establishing a Democratic majority of ninety-two over the combined forces of the Republicans and Populists, the Democratic Congressional Committee has rested content and has not tried to revise their lists, which at the time of preparation agreed with those made by the clerk of the House. Clerk Kerr has also abandoned any further tabulation for the present and has gone out of town.

But at the Republican Congressional Committee rooms Capt. McKee has been doing some quiet figuring with a purpose of scaling the majority down somewhat, and he claims to have succeeded. The figures used by him as a basis of calculation were, he says, collected in all but a very few instances, from the returns made to the Secretaries of State of the various States, and the table will be printed as the official statement of the Republican Congressional Committee. The two Rhode Island districts, where there was no election, have been omitted from the calculation, which results as follows: Democrats elected 218, Republicans elected 128, Populists elected 8, leaving the Democratic majority over the Republican and Populists combined 82.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, and finally settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could not live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Croup. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at Owen & Moore's Drug Store, regular size, 50 cents and $1.

Amusements.

Next Wednesday night Geo. Wilson, the well known minstrel man, with his always excellent company, will hold high carnival at the opera-house. George comes this year in the height of a brilliant success, and amusement lovers confidently expect one of the most pleasing entertainments of the season. Theatre-goers have no doubt noticed the absence of colored lithographs which always adorn the windows in great profusion when Wilson visits us. The agent of the company had the misfortune to be caught in a wreck the other day on the Iron Mountain railroad. Whilst he escaped unhurt he lost all his advertising matter.

In speaking of a recent performance the New Orleans Delta says: "The large audience was kept in a continual state of laughter during the entire evening by Wilson, Goodyear, Welby, Pearl and other members of the company in their new songs, jokes, etc. John Whalen is wonderful in his kaleidoscopic manipulation of the drum major's baton. Welby, Pearl and Keys in their specialty, 'Something New,' introduced a number of wonderful acrobatic feats, consisting of running and standing high jumping and the celebrated Caldonian hitch and kick. The performance closed with Chas. Goodyear's original skit of 'Bi-Chloride of Lime,' which embraces the entire large company, and was a first-class representation of a lunatic asylum."

BEFORE THE BAR.

Geo. W. Avant Again Arraigned For Trial.

The Court Room Packed With People Attracted By the Case—Selecting a Jury.

Criminal court of Montgomery county convened at the court-house this morning Judge Tyler presiding. The court room was filled with people long before the court was called to order. This interest was caused by the Avant murder case being the first one on the docket. The scores of witnesses, the many friends of both sides of the case and some two hundred men who had been summoned as jurors, supplemented by the members of the bar and a crowd of curiosity seekers filled the room almost to suffocation.

The prisoner was brought into the court room guarded by the sheriff and a deputy. When he had taken his seat near his counsel, many of his friends came up and shook hands with him, among whom were several ladies. He conversed pleasantly with all, but there was a nervousness in his manner that was noticeable by all who were in the court room. Mr. Avant has stood his long confinement well, and looks perhaps better than he did the day he was put in jail, over two years ago. His features, however, are slightly disfigured by the mental strain through which he has passed, and while his general health is good there is much evidence of a strain on his mental capacities.

Among the men who have figured prominently in the case heretofore, and who reside out of the city, mentioned Dr. Wharton, of Nashville, the expert chemist in the case. Dr. Wharton arrived in the city last night and was on hand when court was called this morning. It will be remembered that Dr. Wharton was the chemist who made the analysis of Mrs. Avant's stomach, and who testified at the previous trial to having found traces of strychnine in the same. The expert testimony in this case does not end with Dr. Wharton, for the prosecution. Dr. Wickham, of Palmyra, who astonished the court, lawyers and jury with his deep knowledge of the action of the various kinds of poison on the human system, is a witness for the prosecution, and the man who wishes to know all about this branch of medicine can learn it by hearing Dr. Wickham's testimony.

There was much anxiety manifested after court had been convened as to whether the case would come to a trial. This, however, was all put at rest when both sides expressed themselves as being ready. This settled it and the work of making up the jury was begun. This is a very tedious job and will consume nearly all day. At noon they had only secured five. The case will occupy the time of the court during this week and possibly part of next.

Since there will be several applicants for the office of Clerk and Master, the Clarksville bar will hold a meeting this evening to decide who they will support. This meeting, so the LEAF CHRONICLE is informed, will be in the nature of a convention, and may decide who the next Clerk and Master will be.
